Pontiff's Illness Increases Work Load of Cardinals

VATICAN CITY AP—The illness of Pope John XXIII focuses attention on the Roman Catholic Church's College of Cardinals.

These 82 princes of the Church represent the Pope's senate. They are his closest advisers and collaborators. Cardinals also head Vatican administrative bodies that manage the day-to-day affairs of the Church.

It will be the cardinals, gathered in secret conclave, who will elect a new Pope. Almost certainly they will choose one of their number.

With the Pope ill, more work is certain to fall on their shoulders, particularly on Amleto Cardinal Cicognani, Vatican secretary of state, who spent a quarter century in Washington as apostolic delegate.

is probably better acquainted with the 80-year-old Italian cardinal Pope John's thoughts and policies than any other prelate.

But only the Pope can act on such matters as his Ecumenical Council and diplomatic negotiations the Vatican is said to have entered with Communist Hungary and Poland.

The Pope is the absolute ruler of the Roman Catholic Church. It recognizes no substitute for his authority. Catholics feel he holds supreme power as the successor of St. Peter.

His dominant role is reflected in the provision that an Ecumenical Council is suspended automatically on the death of the Pope who convened it. The new Pope can leave it suspended or reconvene it.

The prospect in the case of prolonged illness is that the Vatican administrative agencies will continue to handle current affairs, leaving major problems in abeyance.

In an interregnum, between the death of one Pope and the election of another, such a situation also exists.

The cardinals have an even more prominent role, and the central figure is not the secretary of state—but the cardinal chamberlain, Benedetto Aloisi Masella.

In the period of interregnum all cardinals present in Rome will meet daily to handle routine business. The chamberlain will serve as a sort of interim administrator.

Not less than 15 days after a Pope's death, and not more than 18, the cardinals must meet in secret conclave to elect a new pontiff.

The next conclave will meet under rules revised by Pope John last October—a month before he became seriously ill.

The next conclave will be the biggest ever, for Pope John enlarged the College of Cardinals. At present it has 29 Italian members and 53 of other nationalities.

Although the relative strength of the Italian group is smaller than it has been in centuries, it is likely that the next Pope will be Italian. There has not been a non-Italian pontiff since the Dutch-born Adrian VI, elected in 1522.

Pope Weathers Crisis, Condition Still Grave

CHAIN REACTION—Massive collision of cargo trucks and passenger cars on the fog-shrouded New Jersey Turnpike killed several persons and injured many others. The crash took place in the northbound lane Monday.

Catholic Leader Has 'Growth' In Stomach

3 Doctors Work At Bedside To Halt Internal Bleeding

VATICAN CITY (AP)—"Death" brushed close to Pope John XXIII today, but he weathered the crisis.

Persistent hemorrhaging left him in grave condition.

The Vatican disclosed he is suffering from gastric heteroplasia—a growth in the stomach. This could be a cancer or a tumor, either benign or malignant.

The diagnosis, published by the Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano, was the first specifically defining the illness of the 81-year-old Roman Catholic pontiff.

The dictionary definition of heteroplasia is formation of abnormal tissue or of normal tissue in an abnormal locality.

Through tense hours this morning, three doctors were at the Pope's bedside and worked to sources reported.

It was the worst crisis of the illness which felled him briefly last fall and has since recurred intermittently.

Medical personnel rushed in and out of the papal apartment.

It is possible the doctors have not determined the exact kind of growth involved. In the past, surgery had been considered for exploratory purposes—and been rejected as too dangerous for the pontiff because of his age and condition.

Called "Stomach Disorder" Until today, the Vatican had said only that the Pope had a stomach disorder.

L'Osservatore said the hemorrhages, "caused by the gastric heteroplasia, which has affected the Holy Father for about a year, after being arrested for several months, have had an accentuated resumption in recent days."

"They have now been attenuated," it added, "and the organic consequences linked to them are, through today, limited and compensated by the curative measures adopted," it added.

Aside from disclosing the growth, the statement also disclosed for the first time that the Pope had been ill for a year. Until now, his illness had been dated to last November.

The doctors were Piero Mazzoni of Rome, who has remained almost constantly at the apostolic palace for a week; Antonio Gasbarrini, the Pope's personal physician; and Pietro Valdoni, one of Italy's leading surgeons.

Called To Pope's Bedside Mazzoni went to the Pope's bedside at 9:15 a.m. An hour later Gasbarrini was ushered into the papal apartment. Then Valdoni was called in.

A Vatican source said the difficulty in halting the internal bleeding brought deep concern.

Shortly after noon Gasbarrini and Valdoni departed. Mazzoni apparently was continuing to stand by, as he has for seven days and nights.

In the past, the Pope has rallied after receiving blood transfusions and blood clotting agents.

Apprehension was relieved only in part by the departure of Gasbarrini and Valdoni. It was believed that the hemorrhaging may have been at least temporarily controlled. But it was noted the attacks were becoming more frequent.

Vatican officials said the cardinal called on urgent business. He

House To Vote On Dozen Bills

2 Ohio Measures May 'Strike Fire'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio House, trying to make a busy week out of a short one, scheduled an even dozen measures for floor vote today.

The measures included one of the most heated ones of the session—a proposed constitutional amendment to subdivide Cuyahoga County (Cleveland), the state's most populous, into legislative subdistricts.

Its fate is a nip-and-tuck affair with some Republicans from big city areas leaning against it. It would require a three-fifths House vote to send the proposed amendment to the Senate.

Another measure expected to strike fire in the House is a proposed resolution expressing the feeling in the legislature that daily prayer and Bible reading should be a part of the daily program in public school classrooms. If adopted by the House, it will go to the Senate, but even if adopted by both houses it will have no force of law.

The House also will take up a Senate-adopted resolution calling on President Kennedy to curtail the present volume of imports of residual fuel oil, a burnable substance which offers competition to Ohio-mined coal for industrial purposes.

Also on tap is a House vote on a modest capital improvements bill which would call for expenditure of about $20 million in state funds in the next two years—if available.

As if to compound the already complex House situation, that body also plans to vote on a bill establishing additional seats on the Common Pleas benches of Clermont, Cuyahoga, Lake, Licking, Lucas and Trumbull counties.

Monday night, the first of the legislature's 21st work week, was also a busy one.

It produced one measure which, in the future, may be important to both newsmen and other citizens. It is a bill, passed overwhelmingly in the House and sent to the Senate, which would guarantee "open records" in the state as well as the decade-old "open meetings" law. Both were sponsored by Democratic Minority Leader A. G. Lancione, D - Belmont.

Lancione said that, as a result of the "open meetings" law, little trouble has been encountered on the matter of open records, but he said he felt the new law was necessary to take care of any future situations.

The House defeated, after lengthy debate, a bill to give juvenile courts jurisdiction—by choice—over law violators between 18 and 21. Juvenile Court jurisdiction now ends when a person reaches 18.

The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill prohibiting a person from driving a motor vehicle for more than 14 consecutive hours.

A resolution, sent to the House Reference Committee, asks the highway director to reconsider the department's relocation of U.S. 62 between Ohio 44 and Alliance and speed up the construction program.

Race Violence In Jackson Is Feared

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Jackson kept an uneasy watch today on a racial situation which both sides feared might spawn demonstration attempts and possibly violence.

Involved exchanges of statements and one meeting have produced agreement on only one point: that Jackson would be the next Southern city to experience a concerted effort to win racial concessions.

The big question is what the effort will involve and when it will come. The answer could be disclosed tonight at a mass meeting of Negroes.

City officials and 17 Negro leaders who had been invited by Mayor Allen Thompson met Monday to discuss concessions sought by the Negroes.

The conference apparently produced nothing. Thirteen Negroes left after presenting their goals and without any discussion.

The 13 left abruptly when Thompson asked Negro editor Percy Greene to express his views. Greene and three other Negroes did not endorse the list of integration goals.

Observers saw little chance for compromise because the issues involved are so basic they could be resolved only by one side capitulating.

Negro leaders, backed by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, called for desegregation in several areas. The Rev. E. A. Mays, spokesman for the majority of 13, said his group wanted the city to hire Negro policemen, remove segregation signs from public buildings, upgrade salaries of Negro employees, form a biracial committee, and desegregate eating places and public facilities and—eventually—schools on a voluntary basis.

Thompson, backed by most of the white community of Jackson, said he had "no moral or legal right to bargain away the rights of business men of either race."

Scholarships for KSU Extension Center Available

Several $200 scholarships are available in the area, Alfred L. Fitch, president of the area board of trustees of the Salem Academic Center, reminded today.

The scholarship loan plan will pay for at least half of the total expenses which could be incurred by a full-time student at the Kent State University center.

To qualify for the loans, a student must fill out a confidential application form which includes such information as purpose for going to college, goal aimed for, work and school experience, extra-curricular accomplishments and other pertinent information. The student applying must intend to carry a minimum of 12 quarter hours of work each quarter for three consecutive quarters.

Further information and application blanks can be obtained at the KSU center at Salem Senior High School.

Beaver Board OKs Contracts

Hiring of Football Coach Postponed

Action approving some contracts of 50 uncertified employees of Beaver Local Schools was taken by the Board of Education at a special meeting Monday night.

The group includes cooks, custodians, bus drivers, maintenance personnel and secretaries at the high school, public school, Calcutta, Elkton, Rogers and West Point.

Expected action on employment of a head football coach was postponed pending a decision on the hiring of a coach from within the ranks or opening up the position to outside personnel.

Formal contracts were sent by the board to Rudy Yaksich of Adena, new head basketball and assistant football coach; Mrs. Nancy Lee eBeaver of East Liverpool, who will teach at Calcutta in September; and Peter Metrovich, a Beaver High graduate who will complete his studies at Kent State University in June and return to his alma mater to teach high school social studies.

The board, upon the recommendation of Herman Reuter of the Soil Conservation Service at Lisbon, agreed to permit selective cutting of lumber from the school's 63-acre tract by the high school. Eric Young, C. A. n. n. s. Mills lumber dealer, will conduct the logging operations, with between 400,000 and 500,000 board feet expected to be removed. The lumber includes wild cherry, maple, pin oak, white oak and sycamore.

A meeting with Young will be held Saturday night at 7 at the public school to discuss terms of the cutting. The operation is expected to remove only mature trees, taken out in a way to permit re-growth of the smaller trees and undergrowth so the forest remains a perpetual project for biology studies and future income.

Acknowledged by the board was the donation of $770 by the Beaver Local Public School Mothers Club which paid for the red stage curtain at the new public school gym.

Parking Meter Bill Hearing Continues

The hearing continued today in Common Pleas Court at Lisbon in the mandamus action brought by the city of Salem against City Auditor Helen Coyne over payment of parking meters purchased by the city.

Atty. Joan Bauchne of East Palestine is representing Mrs. Coyne, and City Solicitor Thomas Coe, who filed the action at the request of City Council, represents the city.

The hearing involves the auditor's refusal to pay for 170 meters purchased for $12,482 which she claims were ordered illegally by Mayor Dean B. Crammer, without Council's approval, and without certification by the auditor that money for the meters was in the fund or in the process of collection.

The hearing is expected to run into late Wednesday afternoon before Judge Joel H. Sharp.

Rhodes Delays Bonds Decision

Wants Facts on School Measure

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. James A. Rhodes today delayed a policy decision on a proposed $250 million bond issue which may be presented to the voters next November.

Rhodes said he still is waiting on "facts and figures" in connection with the proposal. He explained:

"We want to know in detail exactly where the money would go." The general idea of the proposed constitutional amendment is to authorize a bond issue for the construction of state university buildings, public schools in distressed school districts, water improvement projects and development of state park areas.

Asked if his administration is abandoning consideration of a proposed $200 million bond issue to finance the state's 50-50 share of major on-interstate highways, Rhodes replied:

"We are taking this one step at a time. We will analyze the first one and then analyze the second one."

The $250 million bond issue would be retired by a continuation of a penny a pack cigarette tax levied in 1956 to pay off an earlier bond issue. That issue was for $150 million and paid for construction of a number of mental hospitals as well as university and public school buildings.

2 New Directors On Clinic Board

Two new trustees were elected at the annual meeting of the Central Clinic & Hospital Monday evening.

Named two three-year terms were George B. Emeny and Robert S. McCulloch, Jr., who replace Henry L. Reese and Walter F. Deming.

Officers are to be named at the reorganization meeting next Monday night.

Other hospital trustees are Dr. G. A. Roose, Dr. W. F. Stevenson, Dr. R. J. Starbuck, Dr. L. A. Cobbs, H. O. Stanley, F. W. McKee, W. M. Morgan, Jr., and Harry Krohne.

Dr. Roose, president of the Association, called attention in his report to the improvements which have been made at the hospital during the past year. The new building addition and relocation of offices has resulted in an increase of 5 beds to the hospital capacity, bringing the total to 60 beds. The number of private rooms has been increased from seven to 12, semi-private from eight to ten and the number of three-bed rooms has been reduced by two. "For the comfort and convenience of patients a new lounge has been provided on the second floor and patient rooms were air conditioned," he said.

Albert R. Hanna, hospital administrator, reported that the hospital employs a total of 100 people, a ration of two employees to one patient.

Adult hospital admissions increased from 2,390 in 1961 to 2,442 in 1962, he said. Births decreased from 414 in 1961 to 371 in 1962. Hospital costs advanced 7 per cent over the preceding year. All of the ancillary service departments showed substantial increases. In addition to the patients admitted to the hospital 9,880 patients were provided services by the X-Ray, laboratory and emergency departments.

Added to the Association membership were: George Baillie, Jr., Wayne T. Darling, Lte Dixon, C. Jerre Hochadel, Atty. Scott McCorkhill, Robert S. McCulloch, Jr., Walter B. Null, David Pohl, C. G. Shaffer, Paul Smith and Donald L. Vincent from Salem; and Ross Mellinger, Jr. and Edward C. Greenamyer of Leetonia.

Roger Marquand, administrator of Polyclinic Hospital in Cleveland and immediate past chairman of the Northeast District Council of the Ohio Hospital Association, addressed the group on the subject of "Areawide Planning to Meet Hospital Needs."

The speaker pointed out that in the last few years changed treatment practices have alerted the type of hospital facilities which are needed. "Special provision

Lake to River Group Elects

Mossman, Morris Get New Terms

J. Paul Mossman, executive vice president of the Youngstown Area Chamber of Commerce, was elected Monday night to a second term as president of the Lake Erie-Ohio River Highway Association.

Mossman and all other officers of the four-county group were retained at the annual business meeting which followed dinner at the Town and Country Motel in Warren.

Also retained were A. P. Morris of Salem, vice president; Harold Mills of Warren, treasurer, and A. C. Patterson of Ashtabula, secretary. Morris is manager of the Columbiana County Motor Club.

Mills is executive secretary of the Warren Chamber and Patterson holds a similar position with the Ashtabula Chamber.

Prior to the election of officers, the Association named four directors. E. R. Chandler, executive manager of the East Liverpool Chamber of Commerce, was returned to another term as a board member from Columbiana County. The group also elected: Wesley Ferbrache, representing Ashtabula County, Walter Scott, representing Mahoning County, and Ralph Taylor, representative of Trumbull County.

Morris and Atty. Francis Lang of East Liverpool are the other two members of the board from Columbiana County.

The President is known to be deeply concerned about the possibility of an integration crisis in June at the University of Alabama. However, he said at his news conference last Wednesday that he believes questions of this kind should be dealt with through the courts, with state and local officials maintaining law and order.

The President said nothing to indicate he was contemplating personal involvement, beyond what he described as his obligation to enforce federal court orders even when this requires the use of federal troops and marshals.

U.S. Dist. Judge H. Hobart Grooms has ordered two Negroes admitted on June 10 to the University of Alabama—one at the main campus at Tuscaloosa and one at the school's Huntsville branch.

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, an outspoken segregationist, took the judge's order as the occasion for repeating a pledge per-casion to bar the Negroes at the doors of the university.

Tanker Loss Hearing Ends

Disappearance of Ship Still Mystery

NEW YORK (AP) — A Coast Guard board of inquiry has ended 37 days of public hearings stymied in its effort to find out how the tanker Marine Sulphur Queen disappeared with 39 crewmen.

The ship, carrying molten sulphur, was last heard from on Feb. 4, off the coast of Florida in rough seas. There was no distress signal.

Rear Adm. James D. Craik, who headed the board of inquiry, said Monday that in the absence of any survivors or conclusive evidence the exact cause for the disappearance could not be ascertained.

He said the only conclusion that could be drawn was that the ship sank in or near the Straits of Florida. Study of evidence and testimony will continue.

The Marine Sulphur Queen sailed Feb. 2 from Beaumont, Tex. bound for Norfolk, Va. She was a converted tanker fitted with special tanks for sulphur, kept molten by steam pipes.

The testimony dwelt mainly on construction details of the ship and analysis of the debris found some time after she disappeared.

Laboratory reports said there was no indication of any fire or explosion. Specialists testified that molten sulphur is not normally considered dangerously explosive.

The testimony also considered whether there was a structural breakdown. The sulphur tanks were attached to the hull with bolts that slid back and forth to allow for expansion and contraction of the tanks as the temperature varied.

Cmdr. Albert S. Frevola, recorder of the inquiry board, noted that another sulphur tanker, not identified, experienced an "explosive-like report" last June 27 and its tanks bulged about 10 inches on each side.

Witnesses testified that the condition of Marine Sulphur Queen life-jackets found later indicated that some of the men may have left the ship alive. The jackets had been used, they said, and some were torn as if a shark had bitten them.

Lisbon Man Bound Over for Fraud

LISBON — A Lisbon man was bound over to the grand jury Monday by County Judge James L. MacDonald for fraud.

Paul E. Myers, 25, of 305 Thomas Rd., Lisbon, was bound over for cashing a worthless check for $25 at Morgan's Drug Store and one for $10.83 at the Round Corner Store.

Judge MacDonald set bond at $500 in each case. Myers is confined to the county jail in lieu of bond.

Poor Relief Bill Signed Into Law By Gov. Rhodes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Bills requiring able-bodied poor relief recipients to work for their checks and transferring point system violation cases of motorists to county prosecutors have been signed into law by Gov. James A. Rhodes.

The poor relief bill also permits any person who has been a self-supported resident of Ohio for one year to draw relief assistance in any county to which he might move. Under present law, county residence also must be established before relief eligibility.

The measure transferring the handling of traffic violation cases will relieve the attorney general of this responsibility. Estimates are that his office now employs 17 assistants to handle the work.

Also among 15 laws signed Monday by the governor were measures to:

Give counties the right to lease abandoned county homes for rest homes.

Limit the personal campaign expenditures for candidates for the U. S. Senate and congressman, at-large to $5,000. The personal limit does not apply to committees sponsoring candidates.

Give the right of land condemnation to waterworks companies.

Toronto Man Given Penitentiary Term

LISBON — A Toronto man, Clayton Hitchcock, 26, was found guilty by a jury of larceny and sentenced by Common Pleas Judge Raymond S. Buzzard to 1-7 years in the Ohio State Penitentiary Monday.

He was indicted for stealing tools valued at $150 from the car of Francis Ruhl, Lisbon RD, while it was parked near a tavern in Wellsville, after Ruhl had given him a ride from Toronto to Wellsville. The jury set the value of the tools at $75 Monday.

Hitchcock previously served a sentence in the Mansfield Reformatory for burglary.

Pavement Plato

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Curbstone comments of a Pavement Plato: Are you afraid of retirement? The desirability of life on a pension seems to vary inversely with a man's age.

Many a young man of 22 or 23, a year or so out of college, is sure that retirement is the real boon of existence. Before he has really worked up a sweat — or perhaps found his true rut—he is ready to turn in his white collar, put on a sport shirt, and start taking it easy.

"If I had the money, I'd quit at 25—or 30 at the latest," he says. "I'd find plenty to occupy my mind. I wouldn't be bored."

The thought that bores him is going to work every day for another 40 years. He feels life has turned older men into mere plow-horses—and doesn't want that to happen to him.

But to many a man of 63 or 64, the prospect of enforced retirement looms almost as a death penalty. His job that seems such a rut to younger men has become to him his only remaining valley of dream. He dreads the thought of hanging up his lunch box for sport shirt, and start taking it ever.

It is hard for him to be told that at 65 he must emerge from his long cocoon of labor and take up the freedom of a butterfly. He has long ago lost the desire to live like a butterfly. His only remaining desire is to stay on the job with his fellows until he dies.

Geriatricians are becoming increasingly aware of this problem as society is forcing more and more men to quit at 65. Since they still have a life expectancy of 13 or more years, what can be done to keep those years from becoming lonely, burdensome, and full of self-pity?

One way would be to gradually start lengthening the vacation period, and shortening the work week, in middle age. Then a man would have the free time and energy to acquire the outside interests that could bolster him in his age, and turn him into a cheerful oldster.

A man can learn to enjoy golf at 40, but try to teach him the game at 65 and he is inclined to think it useless and a waste of time.

Here's the way such a plan might operate:

At 40 you give a man a five-week vacation, at 45 a six-week vacation, at 50 a seven-week vacation, at 55 an eight-week vacation, at 60 a nine-week vacation. At 40 you also put a man on a four-day week, at 50, a three-day week, and at 60 a two-day week. Starting at 63, he'd come into the office only to pick up his paycheck.

ONLY A ROSE—It's hard to tell from this picture who radiates the most beauty, the rose or Brigitte Bardot. It was taken at a party for the cast on a Rome movie set.

AT 65, such a fellow would no longer be too dependent on his job. He'd have learned to do most of his wife's work around the home, and be full of enthusiasms for a long carefree life on a pension.

Since the work of society must be done by someone, however, such a plan would mean young people might have to work harder in their youth. They might have to work six days a week, and take only one or two weeks of vacation a year, until they had reached 40 themselves.

When I asked a number of young men whether they would be willing to make this sacrifice in order to create a happier senior citizenry, they replied unanimously: "NO!"

It's hard to change the rules of the game and please everybody, isn't it?

This Is Where We Came In

The Kennedy administration's triumph in Cuba has been watered down by so many doubts since last October that now it looks like a setback.

Here is Premier Khrushchev arranging to pay his protégé Fidel Castro a visit of state, referring to Cuba as the "first socialist state in America" and thundering about driving the United States out of Guantanamo.

And here again is that pledge by President Kennedy not to invade Cuba in return for Russian withdrawal from Cuba, repeated this time in connection with a threat of nuclear warfare against the United States if the pledge over is broken.

To complete the new surge of disquietude over Cuba, moreover, is a refugee report that the island is swarming with Russians, other reports of submarine bases being built on the Cuban coast and still other reports of Russian submarines frequenting Cuban waters.

ONLY A FOOL or an apologist can go on believing the United States came out on top in its "eyeball-to-eyeball" exchange with the Soviet Union last October.

A skeptic, on the other hand, finds it easy to believe that what happened last October looks more and more like a fiendish twist in the classic strategy of the Trojan horse.

This time, the folly was not opening the gates to let a treacherous enemy bring in a Trojan horse; it was the folly of believing a treacherous enemy who promised to take it out.

The United States, desperately wanting to think that its government at last had come out ahead in a brush with the Soviet Union, has bemused itself ever since with the illusion that its president told the Russians where to get off and they got off—right there.

NOTHING OF THE sort happened.

Cuba never was more dangerous. Castro never was dug in tighter than he is right now. The United States never was more nervous about the proximity of the "first socialist state in America."

The "triumph" of last October has turned into a flop.

Must Everybody Be In the Club?

If it is supposed to be overjoying news that a joint North American-European nuclear strike force under joint control has been set up as the result of hard bargaining in Ottawa, many of us will restrain our elation.

We do not understand the underlying principle of associate membership in the nuclear club. With effort we can understand why a nation like France wants its own nuclear capability. With a little less effort we can understand why Britain is satisfied to share the nuclear capability of the United States.

We do not expect Russia to get into the associate membership business with its allies. If it did, even on a limited scale, the prospect would scare us stiff. As it is, we're scared stiff whenever we hear about Communist China's progress with nuclear reactors and the prospects that, one day it will have an intercontinental ballistic missile.

That will be a tremendous project for China. It has been a tremendous project for the Soviet Union. It has been a tremendous project for the United States. Nuclear capability does not come cheap. The idea of sharing it is hard to buy.

It would be more sensible to think of it the way you think of having a yacht: If you have to ask the price, you shouldn't have a yacht.

No one who can't pay for nuclear capability should be encouraged to fool with it, not even on an associate membership basis.

In Guantanamo to Stay

If the Kremlin had planned it, reports about abandoning the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba, couldn't be more damaging to this country's prestige in Latin America.

The tendency is for the report to become the fact if repeated often enough. This is a familiar tactic in political infighting.

A report is circulated that an officeholder has been asked to resign, or is thinking of leaving public service. The source of the report usually is an adversary of the officeholder.

The ensuing discussion heats up the situation until the officeholder's position becomes untenable and he must leave public service.

The same thing is done with managers of baseball teams and football coaches. It is standard practice. Start an undermining rumor.

We believe the United States will stay in Guantanamo. We believe it would be a stupid move to leave, not because the base is indispensable but because it would look as if the United States had been scared out.

We believe the U.S. Navy's denial there is any connection between development of Roosevelt Roads in Puerto Rico and Guantanamo should be taken at face value. The Navy says the Puerto Rican base is for experimental work—not for Polaris missile testing, as reported by the Kremlin.

We choose to believe Washington.

We believe, in brief, that the Kremlin should be left in sole charge of all reports that help the Kremlin do its dirty work in Latin America. The United States will stay in Guantanamo as long as its departure could be interpreted as a surrender.

It All Comes Back Now

Nothing official ever was done about a request for an investigation of the first Russian space orbit by Yuri Gagarin before the United States believed the story.

Skeptics were shunted aside by those who wanted so hard to believe orbital flight was possible they disregarded the discrepancies in Gagarin's reports and also the rumors that at least one Russian astronaut had been killed or maimed in a preceding attempt to orbit the earth.

They similarly disregarded the disturbing evidence that the Gagarin flight was a simulated endeavor, to cover up the tragic loss of an astronaut named Sergei Ilyushin Jr., son of the famous Russian plane designer.

THE COMMUNIST London Daily Workers had received reports of a previous flight, with the information that the astronaut had been brought back to earth "suffering after-effects."

Gagarin's accounts of his flight convinced some close listeners that he could not have done what it was purported he had done, or seen what he was purported to have seen.

It all comes back now with the news that an assistant administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is testifying about Russian space shot failures as many as four failures, with the loss of as many as five astronauts.

THE QUESTION is still pending and unanswered in the United States as to what would happen if only one astronaut were to be lost. There would be no way to conceal the news of the tragedy here—no desire to conceal it.

Look, Lady

By Truman Twill

Whenever it is time to write another report on the Twillery sheep, I think about the lady who accosted me at a get-together last winter and said she was unprintably tired of reading about my unprintable sheep.

But I am duty-bound to make it known that planned parenthood is paying off. The 1963 lamb crop, which was planned this way, is arriving in mild weather.

There is no anxiety about new-born lambs freezing to death if born while the shepherd is at work. There is no obligation to crouch miserably in a frigid barn half the night awaiting the advent of a new arrival, so his fleece can be dried under a heat lamp.

Twillery lambs this year are coming into the world on rational terms, instead of hit-and-miss, as had been the procedure when the whole thing was as hit-and-miss as the human population explosion.

Understand that even if sheep nature is given free rein the propagation of the species is at no time as chaotic as it becomes among people. Nature, itself, has established restraints that do not exit among the human species.

If the results of planned parenthood continue to be as satisfactory as they have been thus far in a crop of May-June lambs, it will be an automatic decision to continue it indefinitely.

These are lambs that otherwise would have been born late in February and early in March, with blizzards howling outside. They never would have seen sunlight or gone strolling in a meadow until late April and early May.

As it is, they are born one day and strolling in the bluegrass the next day. Their mothers have had the benefit of some six weeks of fresh pasture, instead of coming to their accouchement at the end of a hard winter.

Except for one thing, everything is working out fine. The one thing is kittens.

Nellie, the perennial producer, picked the sheep barn for her latest litter and shrewdly raised her four kittens in the nursery, out of harm's way. But when the lambs started to come and the nursery was put into service for new arrivals and their mothers, Nellie and her brood were dispossessed.

This could have been a problem, but that possibility simply was dissolved when Nellie and her four kittens decided to integrate with the sheep, instead of living in splendid segregation.

At first it's startling to see kittens, lambs and sheep mixed up together, but the arrangement is working out well. They trust each other. It's a curious thing about trust.

Sheep are timid. They don't trust anyone. Yet they will let a crow or a cowbird walk up to them and even sit on their backs. They are not spooked by cats or by dogs, if they know the dogs mean no harm to them.

U.S. Gold Flow In Europe Poses Vexing Problem

By DON COOK

The Kennedy administration's military problem in Europe today can be described as a bad double metaphor: A Gordian knot under a sword of Damocles.

At cost of more than $12 billion a year in loss of gold reserves—which threatens the stability of the dollar and the strength of the American economy—the United States is maintaining a military force of 400,000 in Europe.

At the same time, though, it is committed to strategy which none of its Allies and few of its own officers support or believe. The strategy is the nuclear pause—or nuclear war, twice-removed.

If the strategy were changed, then troops could be reduced and the gold flow materially curtailed.

But hanging over his complex economic-military-strategic knot is a fear of American policymakers—that if we pull so much as one soldier out of Europe, West Germany will go into a psychological tail-spin and Europeans will mutter:

"Ah, Gen. deGaulle is right again—the Americans are going home."

TO CUT the "gold flow," Secretary of Defense Robert S. MacNamara has ordered one of those familiar "root-and-branch" searches for savings in the European Command. With it, of course, goes that other recurring Pentagon cliché about "cutting fat without curtailing front-line strength."

But the best which the savings-seekers have been able to come up with is a program of pruning, consolidations and curtailments which will net about $115 to $125 million a year, about 10 per cent of the current gold drain. Even this figure is theoretical.

When all is studied and surveyed, the military commanders in Europe keep coming back to the hard fact that military costs cannot be reduced without abandoning the pretense of a "strategy of nuclear pause" and going back to what in the Eisenhower administration was known as "massive retaliation."

The Eisenhower policy meant a front line of forward troops strong enough to ensure that the Russians have to mean business if they attack, and instant use of nuclear weapons in answer when that line is hit.

But to shift to "massive retaliation," which prevailed in the days when U.S. forces numbered only five divisions and about two-thirds the air power which we deploy in Europe today, would be to reverse one of the sacred doctrines of the Kennedy administration.

personnel were rotating in and out of bases in Spain, Britain, Turkey, Libya and elsewhere under Strategic Air Command—a total just over 400,000.

Added to this are about the same number of American civilians who are the responsibility of the European Command—either wives and children of servicemen stationed abroad, or civilian employees of the services. The grand total earlier this year was $69,000.

The Army reckons that a soldier in Europe with his family costs $1,000 a year in "gold flow." This is not his pay or the cost of maintaining him, but the money which he spends in Europe that leaves the United States reserves.

IN CONTRAST with the $1,000 that a soldier-with-family costs in "gold flow," the Army reckons that a soldier without dependents spends only about $485 a year. So it seems pretty obvious to the slide-rule boys in the Pentagon that the more soldiers without dependents in Europe, the greater the gold savings.

The other areas where savings look to be possible are: Consolidation of headquarters to avoid duplication or over-lapping of functions and elimination of unnecessary functions; tighter controls over operations with greater emphasis on "Buy American"; longer tours of duty for personnel with dependents in order to save transport costs; transferring some of the supply depot functions to other governments as part of a common NATO effort; cutting down of special port and engineer units; "line cuts" in organization tables to reduce the number of specialists in overseas divisions and consolidate jobs or assignments; constant—and evidently rather irritating—appeal to soldiers and their dependents to avoid spending their dollars in Europe; a shift from the present basis of 90-day military stockpiling in Europe to 30 days.

The trouble with almost every one of these possibilities is that they are either tary or economic realities which simply defeat the objective.

Anti-Communist Movies

By VICTOR RIESEL

This is a tale of two anti-Communist movies, of terror in two cities, of murderous assault. Locale:—South America. This is not script writers' fiction. In one of the cities, the Ecuadorean port of Guayaquil, an 18-year-old messenger boy got a bullet in his head in the second community, riot-torn Georgetown, British Guiana, a friend of Nikita Khrushchev, Fidel Castro and Mao Tse-tung told an American producer his picture could not be exhibited.

To open the first story we pan in on a bicycle rider on the night of March 6. He is Jorge Granda. In his bicycle basket are cans of celluloid—sections of a Columbia Pictures film, "We'll Bury You." This is a documentary which traces Communist propaganda and techniques from Karl Marx to this very moment. It is exclusive footage of the Hungarian freedom fighters' revolt.

YOUNG JORGE is delivering two reels of the film from the Gloria Theater to the Apollo Theater, for there is only one full print of the picture in Ecuador. The practice is not to send multiple prints for economy's sake. Thus the theaters stagger their showings so each reel can be taken from one exhibition house to another and on to a third as soon as it has been run in one theater. Thus, there is an endless chain of showings.

Jorge is a humble lad working for delivery boy's pay and a proletarian youngster if there ever was one.

He had a job and he tried to do it. But that night, at the corner of Rocafuerte St. between Roca and Mendiburo streets at about 8 in the evening, a hunky chap got out of a car. He made for Jorge. He demanded the celluloid reels. Jorge refused to surrender them. His assailant pulled a gun and shot the youngster in the head. The gunman scooped up the reels. Alone, these sections of the film are worthless. Without them, the picture is worthless.

Jorge was rushed to a hospital. There he underwent a trepanning operation at the skilled hands of Dr. Jacinto Cornejo, a Chilean neurosurgeon who fortunately was visiting the city.

THE POLICE rounded up Communist suspects including some who had been recently in Cuba and behind the Iron Curtain. Police Chief Raul Murrieta Rodriguez said the Communists had attacked in a spot no one had expected them to hit. The theaters were under guard—but no one expected an errand boy would be gunned down.

There is no fadeout to this story. The police are still questioning suspects, including one who was carrying a pistol with a metal picture of Castro on its butt. Jorge is recovering. Columbia Pictures and the local townsfolk ran a benefit for Jorge's family, defiantly enough on May 1, the day the Communists try to make their holiday.

So much for physical terror. There is the intellectual assault, too.

On April 2, the producers of "The Manchurian Candidate," one of the gayest, yet intensely effective Communist films made, had scheduled a Broadway type opening night at the Strand-dé-luxe Cinema in Georgetown, British Guiana.

SUDDENLY the representatives of United Artists were informed they could not show their film. It had been mysteriously banned by the Film Censor Board. There was no explanation, though invitations had gone out and the theater rented.

What has intrigued viewers of "The Manchurian Candidate" is the exciting manner in which the producers depict the brainwashing of American prisoners in Communist China during the Korean War.

The instilling by the Communists' psychiatrists of a conditioned reflex in one prisoner is a remarkable study of the possible application of Pavlov's theory in cold-war tactics.

This did not seem to amuse the lady who is a member of, and controls the Guianian Film Censor Board. She is Janet Jagan, American-born wife of the pro-Communist prime minister, Cheddi Jagan. Her household duties obviously do not absorb any time at all.

She not only controls the board but runs the pro-Soviet, pro-Castro, pro-Peiping governing party and is its theoretician. Having been a state guest of Mao Tse tung not too long ago, she was not enthused by the U.S. film. She banned it.

THEN SOMEONE telephoned the anti-Communist newspaper, the courageous Daily Chronicle, and warned the editors not to print the story.

They did. There was an uproar, and to avoid an international incident, the Censor Board retreated.

This one had a happy ending. This is not important. What is vital is to observe the nature of the never-resting Communist apparatus.

Dear Ann Landers: I disagree with your reply to "Deserted Mother." She was a nervous wreck because her about-to-be-married daughter wanted to walk down the aisle alone—as a symbolic slap in the face to her absent father who had skipped 17 years earlier.

You said there was no need to make a spectacle of herself and that it would only provide more grist for the gossip mill. You also added, "Why humiliate your mother in an attempt to punish your father—who probably couldn't care less?"

Well, I'm a mother who was faced with precisely the same problem and you are wrong, wrong, wrong. I walked my daughter down the aisle myself. I then took my place in the front pew. When the minister asked, "Who giveth this woman?" I stood, faced the guests proudly and replied, "I do!"

My three brothers would have been glad to perform the honors but why should they have been asked? I raised the girl myself and she was mine to give away. It was, I might add, the happiest moment of my entire life.—NO PHONY.

Dear No Phony: The about-to-be-bride described in the first letter was a bitter young girl whose hostility would have spoiled the wedding and hurt her mother.

Your letter reflects an even more savage bitterness and hostility. What you refer to as the happiest moment of your entire life was a moment of revenge.

Boss' Wife

Dear Ann: I belong to a club with 17 other secretaries and the problem about which I'm writing is a surprisingly common one: She waltzes into the office almost every day, ignores closed doors, breaks in on private conferences, sits herself down and acts as if she is chairman of the board. This is terribly annoying because I'm supposed to take down everything said at these conferences and when she butts in I'm never sure if I should record her remarks.

Some days she just struts around the office, reads over our shoulders, shuffles through papers on our desks and noses through the file cabinets.

What baffles me is that this woman should know better because she was once a secretary—in fact, she had my job, which is how she got the boss to divorce his wife and marry her.

Why doesn't she have brains enough to stay home?—ANN NOYED.

Dear Annoyed She sounds like a brassy-plated beauty but maybe she's afraid history will repeat itself and she's down there to make certain it doesn't.

Invitation Wanted

Dear Ann: We are delighted with our new daughter-in-law. She and our son were graduated from college last fall and they live about 200 miles from here.

They both work and have a lovely apartment with all new furniture. My husband and I are very eager to go visit them and see their little place which they have described in detail. Of course we plan to stay in a hotel since they have only one bedroom, so that is not the question.

What we want to know is this:

Ann Landers: I disagree with your reply to "Deserted Mother." She was a nervous wreck because her about-to-be-married daughter wanted to walk down the aisle alone—as a symbolic slap in the face to her absent father who had skipped 17 years earlier.

You said there was no need to make a spectacle of herself and that it would only provide more grist for the gossip mill. You also added, "Why humiliate your mother in an attempt to punish your father—who probably couldn't care less?"

Well, I'm a mother who was faced with precisely the same problem and you are wrong, wrong, wrong. I walked my daughter down the aisle myself. I then took my place in the front pew. When the minister asked, "Who giveth this woman?" I stood, faced the guests proudly and replied, "I do!"

My three brothers would have been glad to perform the honors but why should they have been asked? I raised the girl myself and she was mine to give away. It was, I might add, the happiest moment of my entire life.—NO PHONY.

Dear No Phony: The about-to-be-bride described in the first letter was a bitter young girl whose hostility would have spoiled the wedding and hurt her mother.

Your letter reflects an even more savage bitterness and hostility. What you refer to as the happiest moment of your entire life was a moment of revenge.

Boss' Wife

Dear Ann: I belong to a club with 17 other secretaries and the problem about which I'm writing is a surprisingly common one: She waltzes into the office almost every day, ignores closed doors, breaks in on private conferences, sits herself down and acts as if she is chairman of the board. This is terribly annoying because I'm supposed to take down everything said at these conferences and when she butts in I'm never sure if I should record her remarks.

Some days she just struts around the office, reads over our shoulders, shuffles through papers on our desks and noses through the file cabinets.

What baffles me is that this woman should know better because she was once a secretary—in fact, she had my job, which is how she got the boss to divorce his wife and marry her.

Why doesn't she have brains enough to stay home?—ANN NOYED.

Dear Annoyed She sounds like a brassy-plated beauty but maybe she's afraid history will repeat itself and she's down there to make certain it doesn't.

Invitation Wanted

Dear Ann: We are delighted with our new daughter-in-law. She and our son were graduated from college last fall and they live about 200 miles from here.

They both work and have a lovely apartment with all new furniture. My husband and I are very eager to go visit them and see their little place which they have described in detail. Of course we plan to stay in a hotel since they have only one bedroom, so that is not the question.

What we want to know is this:

Ann Landers: I disagree with your reply to "Deserted Mother." She was a nervous wreck because her about-to-be-married daughter wanted to walk down the aisle alone—as a symbolic slap in the face to her absent father who had skipped 17 years earlier.

Hints from Heloise

— By Heloise Cruse —

Dear Heloise: As the technical director of the National Institute of Rug Cleaning I would like to give some advice to your readers about spots on rugs.

The best time to remove a spot is immediately after it happens. Remove all the moisture you can from the carpet immediately. In 90 per cent of the cases the liquid stains can be removed by thorough blotting with some sort of white material such as tissues or white toweling.

Place blotting material over the damaged spot and push hard with the fingers on the toweling or press hard with the ball of your bare foot, changing the cloth from time to time, until no more moisture can be absorbed from the carpet.

Put at least one-half inch of clean, dry tissue, or a folded white towel, on top of the spot after using the above method and weight it down with heavy books — leaving it at least eight hours and the towel will absorb further moisture!

Even if no further removal procedures are used a large portion of the stain will be removed.

By using the above method, when the rug is professionally cleaned you will be less likely to have a spot show up. Professional cleaners cannot remove some spots because of chemical changes which have taken place before it reaches him if the above method is NOT used.

This is the reason why I, as a professional, am delighted to give your housewives this hint.

RICHARD N. HOPPER.

Thanks a million, Mr. Hopper.

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: When trying to put on a cummerbund and no one is around to help you . . . put it on backwards, fasten it and then slide it around into its proper place!

CHARLIE GREEN.

DEAR HELOISE: As you know, permanent starch is a plastic type finish added to a fabric.

The removal of permanent starch poses a problem because it requires knowing the exact fiber content of the fabric, as well as the specific plastic used in the starch applied, before a suitable solvent can be chosen. Water, neither hot nor cold, will dissolve plastic starch. The homemaker can try to remove the excess starch by dipping the garment in a household dry-cleaning solvent. I would recommend using a sample, perhaps clipped from a seam, before trying the whole garment in this solvent.

The housewife could also write to the manufacturer of the starch company as he could recommend suitable solvent for the specific type she used.

PATRICIA A. HUFF.

DEAR HELOISE: For the unsightly summer fireplace (and they are so beautiful in the winter with logs burning! . . . I always put a big pot of philodendron or ivy inside the fireplace itself.

This makes for a very pretty arrangement and the best part of it is when you water the plants you don't have to worry about the water spotting your table!

I do not know why, but any plant I set inside of the brick fireplace seems to grow beautifully. Could it be the flue?

These plants are especially attractive if potted in an old teakettle or bean pot.

MRS. PAUL W.

Could be the moisture in the bricks or stones. Anyone know? Do tell us WHY. Write to Heloise care of this paper.

DEAR HELOISE: We have found it easier to remember dental appointments, etc. around our home by writing a note on a piece of paper. Put the piece of paper in the bristles of your hair brush. When you wake up in the morning you can't possibly forget it! It's right there looking at you-

The Doctor Says

By Dr. WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT
Don't Neglect Varicose Veins

Varicose veins are among the most common health problems of mankind. In order to understand them, one needs to understand the circulation.

When your heart beats, blood is forced into your arteries under pressure. This causes the arteries to pulsate. There is no pulsation in the veins.

In order for Dr. Brandstadt the blood to be returned to your heart it must fall by gravity or be squeezed upward by the contraction of your large voluntary muscles.

This is one reason why exercise helps circulation, but even this action could not keep the blood moving toward your heart unless your veins were equipped with valves to prevent any backward flow.

THE HARDEST PART of the job is getting the blood from your feet back to your heart. Most of the time you are standing or sitting, and the blood has to travel uphill.

When the veins of the legs are subjected to the pressure of gravity, as when you stand in one spot for a long time, they may dilate.

When such dilation has been at work over many years, it may reach a point where the valves can no longer prevent the blood from flowing downward. Such valves are said to be "incompetent."

This is one of the hazards of occupations that require standing in one place for long periods, as may be the case with barbers, dentists, bank tellers, and others. Pregnancy and childbirth also favor the development of varicose veins in some women.

When the incompetence is mild there are usually no symptoms, but the condition is likely to be progressive. As it progresses, aching pains, easy tiring, and a feeling of heaviness in the legs may be present.

IN THE EARLY STAGES, some relief may be used by keeping the feet elevated on a footstool as much of the time as possible, and by wearing an elastic weave roller bandage, or elastic stockings.

These procedures do not remove the cause, nor prevent the condition from progressing.

On the other hand, in the early stages the veins may be injected with a clotting agent which will turn the incompetent veins into solid scar tissue.

The popularity of this method has fluctuated and it is now generally agreed that to be effective it must be applied early in the course of the disease.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT factor is the choice of the clotting agent. Recent studies indicate that sodium tetradecyl sulfate gives the best results.

Taking these veins out of circulation, far from interfering with the return of blood to the heart, improves the process because the venous system is an interlacing network with numerous detour channels. The operation also helps to prevent these collateral channels from becoming incompetent.

When varicosities have existed for many years, such complications as varicose ulcers of the skin and inflammation of the veins may occur. These complications are best prevented by having the varicose veins removed.

IF, HOWEVER, leg ulcers have already developed they must be healed before the varicose veins can be removed. This usually requires a prolonged stay in bed. After the ulcers are healed, if the varicose veins are not removed the ulcers will return.

Once the veins are removed, the sooner the patient is allowed to walk the better, but an elastic bandage should be worn for 2 or 3 months after the operation.

Although varicose veins are common, the greatest damage is done by neglecting them and putting off having them injected or removed.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Ingemar Johansson says he's sticking strictly to business from now on. And the business isn't boxing.

Johansson, the 32-year-old Swede with the "toonder and lightning" right who once held the world heavyweight championship, has reaffirmed his decision to retire from boxing and concentrate on his varied business interests.

"I quit," he said emphatically Sunday in a television interview. "And I won't change my mind." The present European titleholder said approximately the same thing on May 8 after gaining a 12-round decision over England's Brian London, described by Johansson as a fighter "my kid sister can beat with one hand tied behind her back."

Johansson had difficulty doing it with his two hands out front. He was floored by London in the final seconds of the April 21 fight and was practically out on his feet when the bout ended.

STENGEL EASE—Even when Casey Stengel is at ease on the baseball field, his face and mouth are working—both with typical Stengelse. These expressions were recorded as the manager of the New York Mets expounded to sports writers after a recent victory.

Lema Bags Memphis Crown In Playoff

MEMPHIS Tenn. (AP) — Tony Lema enjoyed his new status as second leading money winner on the circuit today after winning the $50,000 Memphis Open golf tournament.

The lanky San Leandro, Calif., veteran pocketed $9,000 Monday after winning a sudden-death playoff with Tommy Aaron of Gainesville, Ga., who drew $4,600.

The victory put Lema in second place in winnings this year behind Jack Nicklaus who won $1,400 in this tournament for 11th place. Lema won top money on the first hole of the playoff with a par four to Aaron's bogey. The two had ended the regulation 27 holes deadlocked at 10 under par 270.

With Aaron leading by two strokes after 16 holes, Lema tied it up with two straight birdies. The first came when a tee shot fell near the pin on the par three 17th hole. The clincher followed when he reached the green of the 500-yard 18th in two strokes.

Both sprayed their tee shots on the playoff hole. Lema's second shot hit the fringe of the green and he was down in two. Aaron's also hit the fringe but his next one went over the green into a sand trap.

Harold Kneec of Aiken, S.C., finished in a tie for third with Bruce Crampton of Sydney, Australia, at 274. Gary Player was fourth with a 275.

The double round Monday was forced by heavy rains which canceled play Saturday and Sunday.

Two racing champions and three cars that ran in the Daytona 500 are among the many outstanding entries for the 14th annual Canfield Speedway 100 mile Memorial Day classic.

Iggy Katona of Willis, Mich., is a 4-time national MARC new car champ, while Jim Cushman of Columbus won the MARC modified title last year. Katona will have a 1963 Ford in the lineup while Cushman will be piloting a 1963 Plymouth.

Cars that saw action in the big Florida race early this year are a 1963 Plymouth to be driven at Canfield by Wimpy Mayor of Auburn Corners; a 1963 Ford with Pat Moore of Findlay Lake, N.Y., behind the wheel, and Cushman in his 1963 Plymouth.

Eddie Sachs, USAC star who has qualified for the Indianapolis 500, has turned over his late model racer to Jerry Morris of Louisville, Ky. Morris will tow in Sachs' 1962 Ford for the "Canfield 200".

The entry list soared to 36 last Saturday as six more came in and at least 35 starters will get the green flag at Canfield on Memorial Day. Race time is promptly at 2:30 p.m. Time trials over the big half-mile track begin at noon. Gates to the speedway will open at 10:30 Thursday morning.

The leading driver in MARC this year, Jack Bowsher of Springfield, Ohio, will have a brand new car for the classic. It's a 1963 "Fastback" Ford with the big 427 racing engine. Bowsher is the current MARC point leader and he will be battling to hold his point lead. Among the late entries is Clyde Parker who is bringing in a brand new 1963 Chevy from Detroit.

Another outstanding MARC pilot entered is Dick Freeman of Dayton. Freeman has a 1962 Mercury and has two new car victories this year.

Memorial Day fans will get a chance to see one of the most outstanding entry of cars ever to race at Canfield.

Romano Lost To Indians With Broken Finger

Dodgers' Injured Wills Sidelined Indefinitely; Tribe Calls Up Two

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
Maury Wills had a great fall, and all the team's medical men have failed to put Maury together again.

That was the problem plaguing the Los Angeles Dodgers today as they faced the indefinite loss of the base-stealing whiz whose bad toe is beginning to cause the club as much concern as did last year's ailment to Sandy Koufax' finger.

While the Dodgers prepared to renew their race for the National League pennant after Monday's open date for all clubs, Wills was undergoing X-ray treatments at a Los Angeles hospital, and facing possible surgery.

Dr. Robert Kerlan, Dodgers' team physician, said Monday that Wills is suffering from calcification of the joint of the second toe on the left foot. He said if the toe does not respond to treatment Wills might have to undergo an operation that would sideline him for three weeks or more.

Dr. Kerlan is one in a series of medical men who have examined Wills. The Dodgers' shortstop said he saw a hypnotist during the winter because the legs that stole 104 bases last year "ached me, or at least I got it into my head that they ached me."

He had no doubts when he had his great fall on opening day. Sliding into the plate in a game against the Chicago Cubs, he wrenched his ankle. He missed a few games, then came back. Soon after the calcification problem set in, causing darting shafts of pain that inhibited his running.

So far, Wills has missed 13 games. He has hit only .252 and stolen 11 bases. At this stage last year, Wills had stolen 23 bases and was on his way to the Most Valuable Player award.

Despite that, the Dodgers did not win the pennant, with Koufax being cited as the main reason.

First diagnosed as a minor problem, the circulatory ailment to Koufax' finger continued to plague him and the left-handed ace of the Dodger staff was sidelined from mid-July to the last days of the season.

While the Dodgers were worrying about Wills becoming a Koufax, the Cleveland Indians had their worst fears about catcher Johnny Romano confirmed. Examination showed Romano broke the little finger on his throwing hand in Sunday's doubleheader with Baltimore.

The injury came right on the heels of the trade in which re-stopped Bunny Grant, 140 1/4, Jarserve catcher Doc Edwards was traded to Kansas City last Saturday for infielder Dick Howser and catcher Joe Azcue.

To bolster their receiving corps, the Indians called up catcher Jim Lawrence and pitcher Ted Abernathy from Jacksonville of the International League. In another

Other Golfers Compete At 50 Locations

Cruickshank, Runnerup To Jones in '23, Advances in Open Qualifying Round

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Forty years ago a young man named Bobby Cruickshank chased the immortal Bobby Jones to the first of his four U.S. Open Golf championships.

While hardly a major threat for the 1963 title, the 68-year-old golfer from Pittsburgh is still in there swinging — swinging well enough, mind you, to make it past the first round of eliminations for the tourney at Brookline, Mass., June 20-22.

Cruickshank was among the horde of 339 players from throughout the country who qualified at 50 locations Monday. Another 106 first-round slots will be filled in qualifications in six sites today. Another 60 do not have to pass first round tests, boosting the huge field to 505.

The field will be chopped to about 150 at the sectional qualifications in scattered locations June 10-11.

Cruickshank, who lost in a play-off to Jones in 1923 and was tied for second behind Gene Sarezen in 1932, just made it under the wire with an 8-over-par 74-77-151 over the Alcoma and Green Oaks courses near Pittsburgh.

In all, 1,909 pros and amateurs played Monday in the 36-hole competition.

For the first time since he made the professional tour in 1937, Ben Hogan, a four-time winner of the Open, did not file an entry blank. He is suffering from bursitis and is not making the professional tour this year.

The low score through Monday's play was turned in by Kansas City veteran Stan Thirk. He put together a 7-under-par 67-66-133 over the 6,400-yard par 70 Indian Hills Country Club course in Kansas City.

The only other 7-under-par recorded in the first day's qualifications was by big John Barnum, a 225-pound pro from Belmont, Mich. Barnum fired a 67-68-135 on the 6,651-yard, par-71 Kent Country Club Course at Grand Rapids.

Glen Fowler of Oklahoma City was 6 under with a 68-68-136 on the 6,609 yard Oaks Country Club course in Tulsa and Jerry Pittan of Tulsa had a 137 over the same layout.

Stepanic's Triumphs; Gold Bars Rolls To 3rd

Old Dutch Hands Merchants First Loss In Softball Race

Bill Herman, starting to round into shape, hurled Old Dutch to a 5-3 decision over Salem Merchants in City Softball League action at Kelley Field Monday night.

Stepanic's picked up six runs in the middle innings to trim Parkers 7-3, and the Gold Bar routed Consers Construction 12-4 in other contests.

It was the first loss of the campaign for Salem Merchants who still lead the class AA loop by half a game. Old Dutch and Stepanic's are tied for second.

Jim Barnes hit a two-run homer in the initial frame to give Old Dutch a 2-0 lead. The winners added three in the fifth on three errors, a single by Dick Youngpeter and a home run by Ken Schoeni.

The Merchants picked up three markers in the sixth on a single by Gene Hammett, a fielder's choice, single by Al Dawson and a home run by George Alek.

Schoeni had a double and single to go with his homer. for Old Dutch. Youngpeter had a double and two singles.

Stepanic's trailing 3-1 in the fourth, rallied for three runs on four errors and a single by Jackson, who led the winners with three hits.

Parkers led early in the game as it tallied two runs in the third canto on two walks, two errors and singles by Hahn, Hendricks and Bozick.

The Gold Bar, Class A leaders with 30 record, scored in every inning. Five of the winners' 16 hits were for extra bases. Wilson and Bryson led the attack, each hitting a triple and two singles. Eckstein had a double and two singles.

Pit Stops Are Topic During Final Tune Ups For 500 Speedway Classic

By DALE BURGESS
Associate Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Drivers were talking more about pit stops than speed today as the Indianapolis Motor Speedway was opened for a last brief practice session before the 500-mile race Thursday.

The conventional Offenhauser-powered roadsters, winners of the last 12 Memorial Day classics, have been making three or more pit stops in recent races.

Colin Chapman of London, who built the chassis of the two Lotus-Fords in the field, is planning one stop apiece for Grand Prix drivers Jimmy Clark and Dan Gurney.

Mickey Thompson of Long Beach, Calif., with two unusually light Chevrolet-powered cars in the line-up, hopes to hold veteran Duane Carter and rookie Al Miller to two stops apiece.

There is a possibility that Parnelli Jones, the qualification record holder, may try for only two stops, too. His Agajanian special is lighter than most of the other conventional 1½-ton.

Twenty-three of the 33 starters will ride on a new 15-inch tire developed specifically for the Lotus-Fords. Other drivers and and shifted to the new tires. Carter's car has tiny 12-inch wheels.

The rest of the field will run on the standard 18-inchers in the rear and 16s in the front.

Clay Gets Word of Warning On His Arrival At London

LONDON (AP) — Cassius Marcellus Clay, who needs no introduction, got a word of warning today:

Button your mouth—or a British fighter might do it for you.

The American heavyweight hit town Monday, London, taking it squarely on the chin, reeled. Today the old place was still groggily shaking its head.

Clay—here to tangle with British and Empire champion Henry Cooper on June 18—arrived prophesying the destruction of his opponent in five rounds.

He held up an open palm, five fat fingers extended.

British fans got the message. The characteristic Clay quotes dropped thick and fast:

"I am the boldest and most popular and most prettiest fighter in the world today and naturally I am going to be the champion of the world. . .

"The big fighters see me on the horizon and they tremble. . . I am too quick for Cooper. I think too fast. . . I'll ruin him. It's too bad. You shouldn't have allowed him to get into the ring with me. It'll be his last fight."

But from one sports writer—J. Jack Wood of the Daily Mail—Clay got a warning that his endless boasting could land him in trouble.

Wood said Clay's boast about not bothering to train hard for this fight—because licking Cooper would be easy—was dangerous nonsense.

"Is Clay that good?" the sports writer asked. "Can he dismiss Cooper with a few thousand words and a few rounds of sparring and conditioning?"

"The answer: No.

Ford's making all the big news today in open competitive road and track events. It's all in the record. Front-running Fords are proving the kind of performance they deliver is total performance.

Performance and durability in a car make a combination that's hard to beat. And big-league competition puts performance in perspective. Mechanical failure forced some pretty hot performers to quit in the Riverside 500 . . . the Daytona 500 . . . Atlanta 500 . . . and the Bristol, Tenn. 250. But the Fords kept going to win every time. The Fords were proving it takes more than speed and acceleration to win. It takes durability, too. Road and track competition is a speeded-up test program. It tests brakes . . . suspension . . . cornering . . . steering . . . roadability. It tests total performance. And Ford delivers —not only in competition, but in your kind of driving too. See your Ford Dealer and sample total performance in a '63 Ford for yourself.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

A word from THERON at the Country Store

This we believe will be about the biggest week we ever enjoyed here at the Country Store. We are loaded up with picnic supplies and most anything you would need for holiday meals.

We are open 19 hours every day from six in the morning till one the next morning. Sundays we open at noon for visitors and emergencies.

If you haven't purchased your flag from the Salem Jaycees or from the Salem Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol, it's still not too late.

We have them here. You should fly a 50 star flag on Memorial Day in honor of those who gave their all for us.
